CLEARPATH ACTION FUND PLANNING $500K FOR HELLER

ClearPath Action Fund is planning to spend $500,000 to help re-elect Sen. Dean Heller (R-Nev.).

“We’re investing heavily in Dean because there’s no doubt he has long been a leader among Republicans in expanding clean energy deployment and innovation,” ClearPath Action Fund Founder Jay Faison said. “He knows it’s good for his constituents and that energy innovation is helping Nevada set the pace for the country and the world.”

The Heller effort includes a new set of digital ads that recognize his clean energy leadership in Congress.

“Senator Dean Heller has worked across the aisle in Washington, taking bipartisan action for clean energy technologies that create good jobs in Nevada,” the 30-second ad states. That includes helping lead efforts to streamline clean energy project permitting on public lands and offer tax incentives for both clean energy production and storage.

ClearPath will also run 15-second and 60-second ads showcasing Heller's record.
